

CAIRD: Working together to produce results

Bill Weinberg

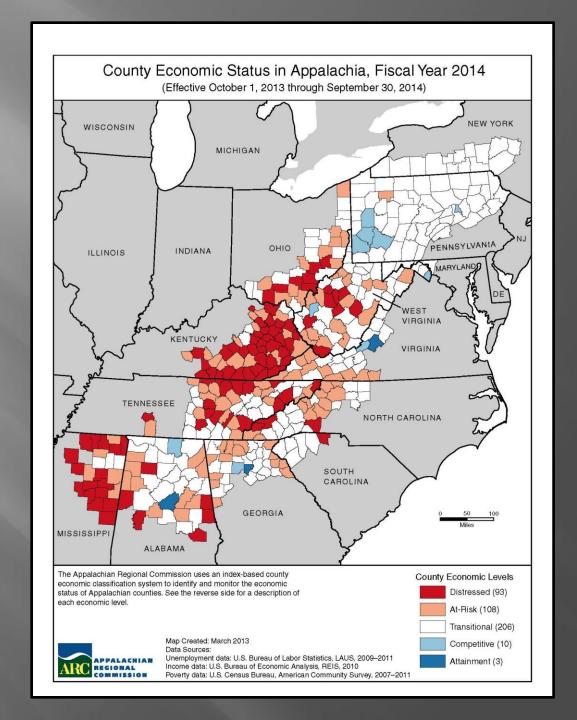

Secretary, CAIRD Board of Directors

Connecting research with results!

Mission

The Central Appalachian Institute for Research and Development (CAIRD) is a non-profit, 501(c)3 public policy organization dedicated to driving longterm development strategies through applied research to alleviate economic distress in Eastern Kentucky and Central Appalachia. CAIRD leads a growing Resource Network of public, private, local, state, and federal organizations including major research universities in matching resources with research needs in order to shape policy and promote lasting regional prosperity.

Dr. John "Jack" Herlihy CAIRD Chief Executive Officer

JohnHerlihy@UPike.edu (606)218-5182 www.CAIRD-Connect.org

University of Pikeville 147 Sycamore Street Pikeville, KY 41501

Leveraging Resources for Eastern Kentucky Communities

The workshop will demonstrate that incorporating arts and culture into community plans is affordable for all communities. The event will include recommendations and creative concepts for realistic, affordable initiatives to include artistic design, features, and programming in Eastern Kentucky communities.

October 29 – 31, 2013 Center for Rural Development, Somerset, KY

Citizens' Institute on Rural Design

October 29 – 31, 2013
Center for Rural Development, Somerset, KY
Free registration
www.caird-connect.org

CAIRD will apply for credits in the County Officials Training Program through the Department for Local Government.

We will also provide the Outside Training Request Form from the Kentucky League of Cities.

The Citizens' Institute on Rural Design (CIRD) is a National Endowment for the Arts leadership initiative in partnership with the U.S. Department of Agriculture and Project for Public Spaces, Inc., along with the Orton Family Foundation and the CommunityMatters® Partnership.